FAQ

Frequently Asked Questions

How does demand fluctuate in locum roles?

Hospitals need locum doctors throughout the year. For this reason, there is a relatively high demand for locum doctors, especially if you are flexible with when or what roles you work.

However, the first part of the year (generally Feb-April) locum work typically is in shorter supply. After this dip, locum work tends to slowly scale up until it reaches a peak that lasts from August through to January.

What documents are required for registration?

- ✓ Current resume
- ✓ Photo ID (passport and drivers' licence)
- ✓ Three consultant level references
- ✓ Working with Children Check (WWCC)
- ✓ Police Check (we can conduct this for you)
- ✓ Vaccination History
- ✓ Medical Indemnity Certificate

How do I get paid for locum work?

PAYG is the common method of payment for locum work. Using this method, your payment will be handled by the hospital or agency. To be paid via PAYG, you simply record hours worked on a timesheet, and depending on processing time, you will receive payment within 2 weeks.

What are my travel and accommodation benefits?

Outside major cities, hospitals will usually cover both travel and accommodation expenses. Travel expenses can include economy return airfares, or kilometre reimbursement if you are driving. Accommodation options tend to scale in line with seniority, starting with hospital quarters for junior doctors, all the way through to hotel rooms for more senior practitioners.

Cars may be provided, whether they be hire cars, or hospital fleets, but this varies from hospital to hospital.
